Muyang was definitely the best TA for the first year core. He was always prepared with extremely detailed and helpful notes that must have taken a long time to prepare. He was always able to answer students' questions, even if they were tangential or advanced. TA sessions were very well organized, since he prepared detailed handouts every week and sent them out in advance. He always tried to focus on the difficult/important topics and the topics most relevant to homework and exams. In his office hours, he was very helpful and also gave advice about elective courses and other aspects of the phd program.

I think Muyang was the best TA in the first year PhD sequence. He was always very well prepared, did a good job in selecting what to cover. He emphasized what to focus on what some potential caveats might be.

You did great! Almost nothing to improve. It would be great if you could mention in the TA sessions a particular mistake that many of us made in the assignments or a really common question office hours. In general, I would recommend using landscape setting on your iPad so we can see more. In addition, it might be worth to make us see the whole page instead of just the zoomed in part you are seeing (this can be set in many of the apps). More feedback on the homework and exam would be helpful.

1. Muyang was always extremely well prepared with pre-written handouts for each TA session. He always tried to present the material to us in different ways and give us helpful tips, which required a very high level of familiarity with the material.
2. Muyang could answer pretty much any question on the spot, which was extremely impressive.
3. Muyang was also very helpful in office hours.
4. Muyang was by far the best teaching assistant I had first year, especially considering that he had to take on the role by himself.

Sometimes Muyang went too quickly in discussion, and it was very hard to follow. In these cases, it would be better to go over a smaller amount of material at a slower pace.

Muyang is definitely the best TA I have ever had during my study at Duke. He is extremely patient and willing to answer any questions during the TA session and office hours. His answers always solve my confusion and sometimes he could enhance my command of knowledge to a higher level. I should emphasize that his teaching is an essential part of my learning in the PH.D. econometric sequence.
